

Berry BUMPS

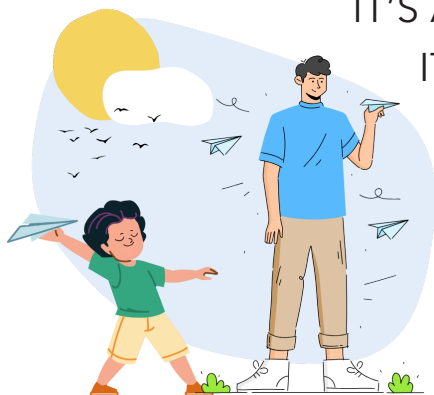

Those funny-looking bumps on raspberries and blackberries have a name: They're drupelets! Don't get them confused with drupes—that's another word for stone fruits, the family that includes fruits with pits like cherries, peaches, and plums.

Fruit FLAG FUN

This Memorial Day (Monday, May 26), turn your plate or a white-frosted cake into an edible American flag. Use blueberries for the blue field and strawberries or raspberries for the red stripes. The white plate or frosting can shine through as the white stripes and stars!

IT'S A BIRD, IT'S A PLANE, IT'S... A World Record?!

According to the Guinness Book of World Records, American Dillon Ruble holds the world record for the longest paper airplane flight. Dillon studied aerospace and mechanical engineering, and his plane soared 289 feet, 9 inches! Plan a paper airplane contest with your family and friends and see who can come closest.
